

Cambridge Assessment International Education

Cambridge International Advanced Subsidiary and Advanced Level

ENGLISH LANGUAGE

9093/41

Paper 4 Language Topics

May/June 2019 2 hours 15 minutes

No Additional Materials are required.

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

An answer booklet is provided inside this question paper. You should follow the instructions on the front cover of the answer booklet. If you need additional answer paper, ask the invigilator for a continuation booklet.

Answer two questions.

You should spend about 15 minutes reading the passages and questions before you start writing your answers. You are reminded of the need for good English and clear presentation in your answers.

All questions in this paper carry equal marks.

This document consists of 6 printed pages, 2 blank pages and 1 Insert.

Answer two questions.

1 Spoken language and social groups

The following text is a transcription of part of an interview with two members of the British music band The 1975, at the Mercury Music Prize ceremony in 2016. The two members of The 1975 are Matty Healy and George Daniel, and the interviewer is from the New Musical Express magazine (NME).

Discuss ways in which the participants are using language here to communicate. You should refer to specific details from the transcription, relating your observations to ideas from your wider study.

NME: what have you guys been up to since your Reading¹ and leeds¹ triumph ≯ Matty: umm George: triumph ≠ (.) everyones talking about it like it was a competition (.) its not like that 5 we (.) we (.) we love (.) we did have a lot of fun at Reading actually Matty: // NME: veah [⋆] // Matty: it was a bit of a celebration (.) what have we been doing 7 (.) same kind of thing (.) just just NME: just headlining festivals 10 Matty: just headlining festivals (.) exactly (.) just sitting around (.) no weve been (.) weve been at home and weve got you know (.) this is (.) this is a big deal for us (.) weve been kind of getting ready for this and mm (.) this has kind of been a month of getting prepared for the next set of touring NME: ok and umm (.) apparently youve been rehearsing with the philharmonic ₹ 15 the bbc philharmonic > Matty: yes we have (.) yeah yeah NME: tell me more about that (.) i mean why (.) why are you getting together with them / (.) whats it going like Matty: 20 well weve got (.) a bbc gig on the thirtieth of september // NME: ok Matty: we're doing a show with the royal (.) the bbc philharmonic orchestra NME: mm mm 25 Matty: itll be about an hour and fifteen minutes of all of (.) our recent album //

ok

© UCLES 2019 9093/41/M/J/19

NME:

Matty: with an orchestra

NME: with that kind of grandiose backing

Matty: exactly [nodding his head]

NME: have you done much rehearsal so far > 30

45

Mattv: yeah weve (.) weve worked it all out and orchestrated it

NME: yeah

but trying to get a whole orchestra anywhere (.) i mean

NME: yeah 35

Matty: its hard to get us in a room

sometimes

NME: right

Matty:

so trying to get us all in a room is a nightmare Matty:

NME: are they quite difficult (.) orchestras > 40

yeah (.) no theyre totally fine (.) i mean theyre proper musicians Matty:

George: we're all divas2 [laughs]

Matty: yeah yeah [laughs]

[laughs]

NME: i can imagine

Matty: yeah the triangle player is a nightmare [smiling]

Notes:

TRANSCRIPTION KEY

George:

(.) = micropause underlined = stressed sound/syllable(s) // = speech overlap [italics] = paralinguistic features ∠ = upward intonation

¹ Reading and leeds: big, annual music festivals in England

² divas: people who behave as if they are very special or important

2 English as a global language

The passage below is taken from the Oxford Dictionaries blog, and discusses how the English and Norwegian languages are evolving together.

Discuss what you feel are the most important issues raised here relating to the changing use of English as a global language. You should refer to specific details from the passage as well as to ideas and examples from your wider study.

The fusion of Norwegian English

English, we often hear, is the world's first truly global language, spoken in more places by more people than any other language in history. Partly this is so, simply, because there are more people today than at any previous time. And partly English is global because of modern technology.

But another part of the reason that English is global is that the language itself is malleable, shaped by the experiences of those who use it. So it's not the case that one kind of English or one kind of pronunciation is spreading the world over. Many kinds are, and as they spread they reflect less the circumstances of speakers from English's traditional homelands and more those of speakers from places where English is learned as a second or third language. Norway is such a place.

10

5

But that doesn't mean that Norwegians speak and write the same English that's heard in any of these other places. Indeed, not only do a lot of Norwegians speak English, and speak it well, they do so in an often distinctively Norwegian way. Occasionally, the English stands discreetly beside the Norwegian, joined to it but kept separate at the same time. A brochure to attract students to study abroad embodies linguistically the cosmopolitan outlook it fosters: 'Go Places – studer I utlandet!'

15

Then there's an advert for Litago (meaning 'brief journey', more-or-less), a brand of flavored milk. The Litago logo is a rather jaunty cow, sometimes depicted on downhill skis and wearing a jumper made from the Norwegian flag. At the top of the advert is the text:

Lita Ready! Lita Steady! Lita Go! 20

This is language as imaginative as an alpine cow wrapped in a Nordic insignia. The leftmost column of words is all Norwegian, the rightmost all English, and the two together something that might be Norwegian but also might be English.

25

Purists can be aghast at the way English is developing as its speakers, increasingly, are second- and third-language learners from around the world. Of course, purists once were aghast at the way English took shape in regional British dialects or in the United States. Perhaps some still are. But Norwegian English is a creative, expressive, and often witty way to use language. And it reflects the kind of adaptation that is necessary for any language to remain alive. Is it English? As a Norwegian once responded to my question in another context, 'Ja²-ish'.

30

Notes:

¹ studer I utlandet: study abroad

² Ja: yes

BLANK PAGE

3 Language acquisition by children and teenagers

The following text is a transcription of part of a conversation between Kamal, aged 2 years 1 month, and his mother and father.

Discuss ways in which Kamal and his parents are using language here. You should refer to specific details from the transcription, relating your observations to ideas from your studies of language acquisition.

Kamal: where your dink

Father: theres my drink

Kamal: oh (.) where mummy dink (5) where daddys dink (1) where mummys dink (1)

where mummys dink

Mother: here 5

//

Father: over there (1) its time for you to go to bed isnt it >

Kamal: dont go bed (.) i dont

Father: its late (1) youre tired

Kamal: no i late

Father: it is late

Kamal: i dont (.) late

Father: youre tired though

Kamal: no

Father: you are tired

Kamal: i dont tired (2) i dont tired

Father: arent you ⊁

Kamal: no

[Kamal looks at his father's empty mug, which is on the table]

Kamal: this up please [reaches up to try to get mug]

Father: why [≯]

Kamal: its (.) daddys

Father: its daddys yeah

Kamal: its daddys

Mother: is it mummys ↗

Kamal: no (.) its daddys

Mother: why >

Kamal: its daddys (.) its daddys

Father: i thought it was mummys

Kamal: its daddys

Father: is it (1) what about jai¹ \nearrow (.) is it jais \nearrow 30

Kamal: no (.) its mummys

Father: i thought you said it wasnt mummys

Kamal: its (.) its jais

Father: is it ↗

Kamal: yeah 35

Father: what about tara¹ >

Kamal: no (.) tara have it [reaches up and gets mug]

Mother: bring it here please

Kamal: why

Mother: youll break it 40

Kamal: why (1) turn it round

Father: yeah but you might break it

Kamal: why (1) why

Notes:

¹ jai, tara: Kamal's older sisters

TRANSCRIPTION KEY

(1) = pause in seconds

(.) = micropause

underlined = stressed sound/syllable(s)

[italics] = paralinguistic features

→ = upward intonation

BLANK PAGE

Permission to reproduce items where third-party owned material protected by copyright is included has been sought and cleared where possible. Every reasonable effort has been made by the publisher (UCLES) to trace copyright holders, but if any items requiring clearance have unwittingly been included, the publisher will be pleased to make amends at the earliest possible opportunity.

To avoid the issue of disclosure of answer-related information to candidates, all copyright acknowledgements are reproduced online in the Cambridge Assessment International Education Copyright Acknowledgements Booklet. This is produced for each series of examinations and is freely available to download at www.cambridgeinternational.org after the live examination series.

Cambridge Assessment International Education is part of the Cambridge Assessment Group. Cambridge Assessment is the brand name of the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate (UCLES), which itself is a department of the University of Cambridge.