- 1 Discuss the role of the Crown Prosecution Service and its significance in the administration of justice in England and Wales. [25]
- 2 Consider critically the options open to a judge when a statute appears to be imprecise or contradictory. [25]
- 3 'There is far too much delegated legislation and too little known about it.' Evaluate the advantages and disadvantages of delegated legislation, and consider to what extent you would agree with this statement. [25]
- 4 'Twelve people ignorant of the law, directed by a judge who is likely to be wholly out of touch with ordinary life.' Would you say that this is a fair description of trial in the Crown Court? Give reasons for your answer. [25]
- 5 'The system of precedent merely slows down the proper development of the law.' Discuss this statement. [25]
- 6 'The courts are the very last places in which a litigant would be advised to seek resolution of a civil dispute.' Discuss the strengths and weaknesses of the civil court system. Consider the alternatives to taking a civil case to court. [25]
