Brazil Tourist Visa Requirements

Brazil hosts only six million international inbound tourists per year. The tourism industry is largely based on domestic visitors with 94% of tourist spending coming from domestic visitors.

Brazil's tourism minister hopes that relaxing the country's visa rules will help develop Brazil's inbound tourism sector.

People from 83 countries can currently visit Brazil without a visa. The countries that require Brazilians to hold a visa to visit their country, must apply for a visa to travel to Brazil. For example United States, Australia and Canada.

In order to obtain a visa, tourists are required to submit application forms, passports, photographs and itinerary information weeks ahead of travel. This can typically cost US$160.
